Day Dresses Are Shorter

Sleeves Shortened To Add Attraction.

Day dresses and suits are, if anything, shorter here than last year. Length may be as much as thirteen or fourteen inches from the ground, according to the taste of the wearer, Even thirteen inches looks short after the length of winter clothes. Wool dresses, skirts and blouses, Bkirts and jumpers are about an 15 inch shorter than the long cost which goes with them.

Worth shows a number of suits for mornings or afternoons, som with the long, loose coat, some with the short sack jacket. The latter is, 14 made out of the common by having I next to no sleeve. On the whole conts and skirts are severe, with great attention paid to the blouses. There are black suits with white shirts, made like a man's evening waistcoat, even to having a buckle at the back. Many of these waistcoats are needed for one suit.

Shorter Sleeves Soft white pique is used for turned-back collars. One black coat-of ...July 13 a coat and skirt—has white inner cuffs as well. The short sleeves are for the less severe jumpers and for fanciful blouses.

For others these are sleeves reaching to just below the elbow. These are rather smart and are kind to the thin arm. They are less good for creases when the arm is bent. Even the severe sults, many of ., 13 them, are made of two different materials. There are whole dresses of checked homespun, worn with coats of plain material with buttons 13 straight down the front.

Collars of variegated dresses often serve for those of plain coats. 9 Some suits cultivate the clean blue 13 and white, which is attractive to most people. Stuffs cannot be chosen with too much care if the season's note is to be sustained.

NECKLINES ARE ALTERING.

Smart When Worn High.

Spring necklines are smart when they're high, but the V neckline is not amiss here and there. If you prefer to compromise between the two, there are convertible necklines that can be worn high, and buttoned on one shoulder. When worn "buttoned up" the wide, single rever has a crisp ruche or fluttery ruffle edging. Worn unbuttoned, and you have a modest V neckline, with the rever showing its silver lining. which usually reveals an expanse of lingerie trimming.

Pleated rufflings are doing things and, of course, there is plenty of white. But pastel rufflings are newer, and add a very "different" feeling accent.

BUILDING BRITISH

In Guiana.

Georgetown, British Guiana. This is the story of a promising British industry which has established itself here in the face of repeated disappointments:

REPEATED DISAPPOINTMENTS

Two years ago there was not a pineapple worth exporting in British Gulana.

But there was fertile soil, a suitable climate and—a good potential market.

Local merchants hit by the diamond slump formed a company to grow and can pineapples in the colony. They ordered 100,000 plant "tops" from Hawaii.

Then came a great disappointment. The "tops" arrived in British Guiana as dry as hay and, to all appearances, good only for cattle food.

The company sent for a second shipment to Hawaii.

This time the answer came back: "Nothing doing." Hawaii had decided it was bad business to give competitors a helping hand.

Then the company applied to the French island of Martinique. Again the answer was "No."

Meanwhile, somewhat despairingly, the first shipment of pineapple "tops" from Hawaii had been planted in nurseries and carefully tended.

Many of them failed to grow. But some flourished and put out roots. The British Guiana pineapple canning industry was born. To-day there are 500,000 healthy plants producing fruit. Nearly 50,000 acres of land are to be turned into pineapple fields.—Reuter.

MASON WINS WELTERWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP

Smith Disqualified In Round Fourteen.

CROWD RESENT REFEREE'S DECISION

(By GEOFREY SIMPSON)

London, June 11. Harry Mason, of Leeds, a boxing veteran of 31. became the new welter-weight champion of Great Britain, in succession Jack Hood, at the Sparkbrook Rink, Birmingham, last night, when he won a verdict over Len Smith, a local boxer, in the 14th NEW DECATHLON round.

The finish was highly unsatisfactory as Mason was floored by a left which was so low that the referee had not the slightest hesitation in disqualifying Smith.

- The crowd took this ruling badly, and there were unruly scenes at the ringside.

Two speciators came to blows and there was so much uproar that it was some minutes before the verdict could be announced.

There was no question in my mind, however, that Mason was fouled.

EARLIER INCIDENT There had been an incident earlier. In the eleventh round Mason seemed to be hit low and dropped, but a most unpromising situation, with Mason on his kneed protesting, was haved by the close | H.K.V.D.C. MACHINE of the round.

He consented to continue, and had the contest travelled its alloted span he must have won on points.

Not for years have I seen Mason look so fit. DAVIS CUP

AGILE FUJIKURA

PROMISING' FORM

(By A. WALLIS MYERS)

London, June 11. LTHOUGH the Davis Cup tie between Australia and Japan had been settled the previous day, youth and ardour were in full cry at Eastbourne on Saturday, and the stands were crowded to watch two exhibitanting matches. In the first - between the junior members of each team -J. Fujikura gained a well-merited victory over V. B. McGrath (4-6, 7-5, 6-2, 6-4), and in the second D. P. Turnbull, who took the place of J. H. Crawford, beat J. Yamagishi, Japan's first string, in three sets (6-4, 7-5, 9-7). Thus the honours on the third day were divided, Fujikura's triumph over a player who had defeated J. Satoh in the Davis Cup last year, and who in his own country last season had a better record than Crawford, had about it no element of luck. It revealed the winner as a gifted exponent of the game, armed at all points, with fluent footwork, an alert brain and a cool hand under attack. -

ASLEEP AT THE WHEEL?

Lorry Driver Sent. To Gaol.

CASTLE PEAK ROAD CRASH

Hon Ping, 38-year-old licensed driver of lorry No. 364, was sentenced to one month's hard labour by Mr. J. B. H. Lee at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, for driving his lorry in a dangerous manner, resulting in an accident.

Prosecuting, Inspector Saunders stated that the lorry was going along the Castle Peak Road, towards Kowloon, at about 25 m.p.h. at 5 p.m. on July 7, and that bus No. 89, of the Kowloon Motor Bus Company, was travelling in the opposite direction. When the lorry was about 200 yards ahead of the bus, it started to swerve and run from side to side of the road, "as if a novice driver was at the wheel." The bus-driver sounded his horn, and the lorry stopped swerving immediately, but went straight into the bus. The bus swerved, but the lorry hit it on the left hand side, causing the steps to be thrown high into the air, and breaking the front axle of the bus, Compensation Ordered For Chinese Girls.

A fine of $25 was imposed upon meeting. Wu Ting-cheung, a 20-year-old student of the Far East Aviation School, Kai Tack, by Mr. J. B. H. Lee at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, for having driven a Ford two-seater Sedan, No. 344, along Nathan Road on June 30 without a license.

He was also charged with driving without due care and caution when colliding with two Chinese girls, named Cheung Mul, 19 years old, and Li Hing, 18 years old.

Owing to lack of evidence against him, however, Wu was discharged on this count.

Inspector Saunders asked for $25 to the Colony from banishment. compensation for each girl, and the
